

StableDAO

StableDAO is the brainchild of Sam Lee. He makes you work for your money. There I acquired one Family Pack with a $700 price tag and a $300 Standard Pack. So far, I've withdrawn $706.50 from both. The Family Pack is tapped out and finished but I'm still eligible to receive $630 from the Standard Pack if I keep on reading two ezine essays a week and completing the two surveys about them. Reading one essay and completing one survey in the assiduous way I do takes about half an hour. They're mostly about AI, blockchain, bitcoin, the Internet of Things and investments, most of which I find interesting and informative and some not. So, with that track record, I will only make about $300 profit and get an education, for most people, barely worth it. But it's the only one I've found that I believe is solid with integrity.

But it's already somewhat obsolete. Sam's new venture is called WAAS, We Are All Satoshi. You can get into that for as little as $100 and I believe can make $4 at that level for each essay and survey you do. The more money you put in, the more you get for your work. I haven't done that yet but probably will.

I do believe Sam Lee is already super rich and not so focused on making money or ripping people off. He acquired a lot of bitcoin very early and has been a leader in the blockchain revolution. His main motivation seems to be in garnering a following of over 1 billion people which will also, I'm sure, make him money, and in furthering and making more accountable, honest and sustainable the whole blockchain world.

As in all these blockchain vehicles, one's income would multiply with affiliates. If you have any interest, email me.

Avoid

Nova-Look and HyperNation or any of their related enterprises. They're crooks. NovaTechfx might or might not also be crooks. As things stand, I'm unable to withdraw from them. I thought Happy Miner might be solid, but as of this writing, they've temporarily or permanently disappeared.
